

About

There's no one-size-fits-all approach in supporting youth engagement, but all young people have a spark. Something that inspires and drives them; and this can be the spark that helps them to find resilience, build a sense of self and self-worth to overcome diversity and find relevance in their education.

Working with parents

Queensland schools are committed to strong communication with parents and communities, to support all students to succeed.

Parents play a significant role in supporting their child's education, but it can be hard to know how to navigate education pathways and options and access relevant support. Building a strong value of learning and developing the motivation to take opportunities comes from within. By supporting their child's spark and unique interests, parents can help their child build resilience, enhanced sense of self and build relevance and meaning in their education.

Sparkling their future

They might be surprised how much their child is already learning from being engaged in their hobby. It might surprise you how much their spark can influence other areas of their life. As they try and fail, they are learning. Trying is perseverance. Learning is developing expert skills and knowledge in the area. Seeking out information is researching. Through nurturing a child's spark, you can help them develop a range of skills they can use in all areas of their life; while giving them purpose, enjoyment and strengthening their sense of identity.

Through this site, you can find tips, information and support to help your child to get the most from their education.

Working with schools and organisations

Subscribe to our newsletter

Schools and organisations can stay up to date on latest Spark their Future info and receive ready-to-use newsletter and social media clips.

First Name

Last Name

Email

School Organisation

We value your privacy as much as you do. We will not give your email address out to any other parties. Please note, this newsletter is not intended for parent subscriptions.

Ignore

Last Updated: 25 October 2023